

Twilight Poetry Inset - FREE - with Jacob Sam La Rose
Wednesday 11 October, 4pm - 6pm, Hellens Manor in Much Marcle HR8 2LY. Book places by emailing Chloe Garner, director@poetry-festival.co.uk

CONTENT OF THE INSET:

- a foundational methodology/model for structuring creative writing lessons/workshops/programmes
- a series of easily accessible exercises for generating poems and finding ways into working with poetry
- guidelines and tools for editing and critique of poetry
- ways of working with the performance of poetry as a driver/catalyst for editing and further refining work
- suggestions on how to establish/facilitate in-school creative writing "clubs"

Jacob's sessions for teachers can be appropriate for all levels, and sessions are typically practical in nature, so attendees will have the opportunity to experience some of the writing challenges Jacob will share with them.

BIO: "Jacob Sam-La Rose's poetry has been characterised as vivid, masterly and carefully structured. His collection 'Breaking Silence' was shortlisted for a Forward Poetry prize and an Aldeburgh Fenton award, and is a set text for an English Language and Literature A Level (OCR). He has led workshops and creative writing programmes for students, teachers, emerging writers, literature-in-education facilitators and other creative professionals across the UK, Southeast Asia, the US, and South Africa. Responsible for the Barbican Young Poets programme and Spoken Word Education (Goldsmiths University, London), Jacob is widely recognised as an indefatigable facilitator and mentor."
